Guest Speaker
Federal Emergency Management Agency (Jody Hill) – Emergency Program

In the aftermath of this past summer's hurricanes, faith affiliated disaster responders across Florida came together. Recognizing that communication and cooperation among responding disaster relief organizations would enhance the faith community's ability to meet long term unmet needs of disaster victims, these leaders sought to strengthen the way Florida faith communities would embrace disaster in the future. Florida Interfaith Networking in Disaster, FIND, was formed.

A mission to bring faith organizations together with allied agencies to network and to prepare and respond in the event of disaster was adopted. Faith communities throughout Florida would never again have to face disaster alone. FIND would be there to help faith leaders as they identified and sought to address disaster related unmet needs. Access to resources would be provided, needs would be met, homes would be rebuilt, lives would be renewed.

Jody Hill, from Florida Interfaith Networking in Disaster, FIND, will be on-hand to talk about potential FEMA funding and how nonprofit groups may access these funds.
